

SEMINAR: Electronic Commerce - The Legal Context

David Martin-Clark, Stone Chambers

The Seminar:

A presentation that covers the principles of Electronic Commerce from the perspective of International Conventions and Model Laws, European Union Directives and UK primary and secondary legislation. It includes a section on electronic disclosure in litigation and arbitration and concludes with an overview of current electronic transport documents, including the relevant provisions of the UNCITRAL Convention on the Carriage of Good Wholly or Partly by Sea - the 'Rotterdam Rules'.

The Speaker:

David Martin-Clark spent the greater part of his commercial career at the firm of Thomas Miller in the City of London. Thomas Miller are the leading providers of management services to mutual insurance associations and captive insurance companies, spanning both the shipping and transport industries and the English professions, such as solicitors and barristers. Their most prominent businesses are the management of the United Kingdom P & I Club, the UK Defence Club, the TT (Through Transport) Club and the Bar Mutual Indemnity Fund.

From his time in Millers, David gained wide experience in the shipping and transport and related insurance industries. He served as Chief Executive and then Chairman of the Miller group and was a Director of its regional subsidiaries in the United States, Australia, Hong Kong and Singapore. He was resident in Hong Kong for some years and founded there the Miller group holding company for Asia Pacific.

Since leaving Millers, David has become an Associate Member of Stone Chambers and has developed his practice as a maritime arbitrator and commercial disputes mediator. He also offers a general commercial advisory practice. Outside Chambers, he continues to be active as a shipping and insurance consultant.
